Abstract

Deen-e-Islam is a complete code of life providing principles of success and welfare in this world and the hereafter. According to the Holy Qura'an, Wordly success depends on the resources of this world including economic prosperity. Just as weaknesses in belief and practices (Worships) causes spiritual depravation, similarly, fiscal weaknesses of a person/country lead to economic plight. Islamic principles ensure the economic prosperity of its believers. That is why, it lays a comprehensive system whereby not only an individual's personal life becomes stable but establishes healthy relations with the world and its people.

This study focuses the just and equitable principles of economic system which can guarantee any individual not to swing completely either, to monasticism or secularism. It also makes comparative analyses of the western economic system and Islamic Economic system.
